The Tator Statement

To the exclusion of everything else except the telegraphic news, we this morning give to our readers the very interesting statement made by Judge Taron to the public previous to his execution. It was read by him from menuscript in a cleer, full voice, end had not the circumstances of guilt been so overpowering, it would undoubtedly have produced eu impression of iuno

Our neighbor of the Republican has been much exercised addnt the "copy," having the had blood and poor taste to insinuate that we could be guilty of a thing he undonbtedly would do, did an opportunity offer -obtain the copy surreptitiously. It was handed us, at the earnest request, of the prisoner, by Rev. T. B. LEMON. We were sent for hy him several days before the exeention, and requested to publish it, saying to us that as the editor of the Republican hed taken adventage of the little position he holds as the conductor of a public journal to do all in his power to prejudice his legal rights, hy publishing during the progress of the trial, italicised portions of the evidence, and by his volunteering his opinion as to the guilt of the accessed in editorials tending to create prejudice and bias in the public mind -in view of these and other facts of like nature, the prisoner did not wish the editor ot the Republican should have the original copy.
